

RAVE

Nikita Kering

A spark of musical brilliance and artistic dedication

Ethic

A group of musicians who are becoming stars

Teenage star

A 17 year- old kenyan singer is a rising star in her home during the fourth annual Pulse Music Video Awards. She won the new artist of the year award.

Kenya's rising star

Nikita's adorable voice and lovable nature have made her the darling of many. She has presented awards at gala events at the age of 12.

Musician & performer

Nikita Kering' is the new star in town after she won the New Artiste of the Year award during the fourth annual Pulse Music Video Awards (PMVA) on Thursday night. The rather bold and eloquent brainy beauty was the favourite of all with a record 1,849 SMS votes that propelled her to an emphatic win over her worthy competitors. "I am so happy that my supporters have voted and that is one main reason why I have won this award. I thank God, my family and my fans for supporting me all the way," Nikita, 16, said as she received the award. With 53 per cent of the votes, Nikita carried the day in a category that had over 4,000 votes cast. This is the same category that had attracted more than 260 applicants, also a record number. Nadia Mukami, another rising star, attracted 31 per cent of the votes, with the greatest support coming from her online fans. The gorgeous diva, who is popular for her hit track Si Rahisi was among the performers of the night. Other Kenya's 'A' list stars were King Kaka and Khaligraph Jones aka The OG.

Nikita Kering' is the new star in town after she won the New Artiste of the Year award during the fourth annual Pulse Music Video Awards (PMVA) on Thursday night. The rather bold and eloquent brainy beauty was the favourite of all with a record 1,849 SMS votes that propelled her to an emphatic win over her worthy competitors. I am so happy that my supporters have voted and that is one main reason why I have won this award. I thank God, my family and my fans for supporting me all the way," Nikita, 16, said as she received the award. With 53 per cent of the votes, Nikita carried the day in a category that had over 4,000 votes cast. This is the same category that had attracted more than 260 applicants, also a record number. Nadia Mukami, another rising star, attracted 31 per cent of the votes, with the greatest support coming from her online fans. The gorgeous diva, who is popular for her hit track Si Rahisi was among the performers of the night. Other Kenya's 'A' list stars were King Kaka and Khaligraph Jones aka The OG. In what looked like a surprise move, King Kaka won in the coveted Male Artiste Video of

Nikita Kering' is the new star in town after she won the New Artiste of the Year award during the fourth annual Pulse Music Video Awards (PMVA) on Thursday night. The rather bold and eloquent brainy beauty was the favourite of all with a record 1,849 SMS votes that propelled her to an emphatic win over her worthy competitors. "I am so happy that my supporters have voted and that is one main reason why I have won this award. I thank God, my family and my fans for supporting me all the way," Nikita, 16, said as she received the award. With 53 per cent of the votes, Nikita carried the day in a category that had over 4,000 votes cast. This is the same category that had attracted more than 260 applicants, also a record number. Nadia Mukami, another rising star, attracted 31 per cent of the votes, with the greatest support coming from her online fans. The gorgeous diva, who is popular for her hit track Si Rahisi was among the performers of the night. Other Kenya's 'A' list stars were King Kaka and Khaligraph Jones aka The OG. In what looked like a surprise